The D.C. Department of Corrections (DOC) is one of several agencies under the oversight of the Deputy City Administrator/Deputy Mayor for Public Safety and Justice. DOC currently operates one of the largest municipal jail systems in the country with an average daily population of approximately 2,100 inmates. Those in the custody of DOC include males 93% and females 7%. The DOC system is comprised of two primary correctional facilities—the Central Detention Facility (CDF) also known as the DC Jail and Correctional Treatment Facility (CTF). In addition, DOC contracts with two privately operated halfway houses for the community placement of male/female inmates that offer a variety of educational opportunities and other programming services.

PREA REPORTING

DCDOC responds, investigates and takes appropriate action on all reports of sexual abuse, sexual assault, and sexual harassment. Inmates who are sexually abused or sexually harassed are encouraged to report incidents immediately. The agency also accepts third-party reports regarding sexual assault and sexual abuse of an inmate/detainee in custody at any of its facilities. Third parties may use the following reporting methods: • Calling the confidential DC Victim Hotline at 1-844-HELPDC or 1-844-443-5732 • Sending a letter to the DCDOC PREA Coordinator, 1901 D. Street, SE, Washington DC 20003. False reporting has serious consequences and may lead to criminal prosecution.
INMATE PROFILE

The inmate population within D.C. Department of Corrections is made up of adult males and females and juveniles adjudicated as adults. Adult males with maximum, medium, and minimum security levels are housed at the Central Detention Facility (CDF). The Correctional Treatment Facility (CTF), is operated by the DOC since February, 2017, after it was previously operated by a contractor, the Corrections Corporation of America. It is a medium security level facility that houses males, females, and a unit for juveniles being tried as adults. All inmates within the agency’s custody are either pre-trial offenders, sentenced misdemeanants, or convicted felons awaiting transfer to the Federal Bureau of Prisons (FBOP) or short term sentenced felons designated by them to the agency. As of September 2017, approximately 63 FBOP short-term felons have been designated to the agency. Approximately 37% of the male population is between the ages of 21-30, and about 34% of the female population is between the ages of 31-40. Juveniles charged as adults represent an average population of 21. The DOC inmate population is eighty-six percent Black or African American, 6% Hispanic or Latino, and 4% White. Approximately 61% of men and 46% of women in custody self-reported that they have at least a High School Diploma or GED.

Approximately 54% of the male inmate population are held on pre-trial felony status. Their average length of stay is 225 days. Male pre-trial misdemeanants represent 3.2% of the male inmate population with an average stay of 28 days. Female inmates with a pre-trial felon custody level represent approximately 39% of the female population and have an average stay of 105 days. Fifteen percent of the female population are pre-trial misdemeanants with an average length of stay is 19 days.

At DCDOC, approximately 35% of male inmates and 21% of female inmates are incarcerated on charges involving violent or dangerous offenses.
The DCDOC has a zero-tolerance policy regarding all forms of sexual abuse, sexual assault, and sexual harassment involving any person who works, visits or is confined in its facilities and/or contracted facilities. Prevention is a top priority for the D.C. Department of Corrections.

The Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA) of 2003 is a federal law that seeks to eliminate sexual abuse and sexual harassment of inmates. It applies to all correctional facilities, including prisons, jails, juvenile, military, Indian Country and Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) facilities. The final rule became effective August 20, 2012.

DCDOC rules strictly prohibit sexual assault, sexual abuse, sexual acts and sexual contact between inmates (including arrestees, detained inmates, and halfway house residents) to include that of a consensual nature. Forced or coerced sexual behavior among the detained population violates agency rules and is a criminal offense. The Department takes action to detect, report, investigate and hold perpetrators accountable, including prosecution, which may result in additional imprisonment.

DCDOC rules and the law also strictly prohibit staff from any type of sexual activity with an inmate. By law, an incarcerated person is unable to legally consent to sexual activity of any kind with a staff member. This type of activity is referred to as staff sexual misconduct and is punishable up to and including loss of employment, civil penalties, or imprisonment. Any reports of such incidents are investigated thoroughly, and the employee is held accountable for substantiated findings. Inmates who are sexually abused or harassed, by anyone, are encouraged to report the incident immediately.

As part of DCDOC’s commitment to improve sexual safety and develop best practices to support those efforts, DCDOC is building and sustaining partnerships with community stakeholders and ensures that victims of sexual abuse within its facilities receive services and support comparable to those services provided to victims of sexual abuse in the community. The Department recognizes the importance of community stakeholders in providing services to victims of sexual abuse in confinement. PREA standards set clear expectations for involvement of community partners in order for compliance to be complete. PREA standards that specifically address the role of community stakeholders in providing services to victims of sexual abuse include:

- Inmates with disabilities or who are limited English Proficient require access to all aspects of PREA efforts;
- Evidence protocol and forensic medical examinations;
- Facilities make a victim advocate from a rape crisis center available to provide confidential support services to a victim;

1. Inmate access to outside confidential support services;
2. MOU Agreements with community service providers;
3. Inmate Reporting;
4. Third Party Reporting.

By strengthening the collaboration between DCDOC and the essential stakeholders, and leveraging untapped resources, DCDOC sustains its capacity to respond to the threat of sexual abuse in confinement.
